
About the Author

R.F. (Ron) Vincent, PhD, is a professor of Physics and Space Science at the Royal Military College of Canada in Kingston, Ontario. In a previous career he flew as an Air Navigator with the Royal Canadian Air Force on the CP-140 Aurora maritime patrol aircraft out of Comox, British Columbia. In his novel Life at the Precipice, Dr. Vincent uses elements of his military and academic careers to build a compelling narrative that straddles the boundary between the real and surreal.

In addition to scientific papers focusing on Arctic climate change and CubeSat missions, Dr. Vincent has published two other works of fiction: an unconventional fantasy, The Curious Mr. Pennyworth, and an award-winning short story, Men in Red Shirts Have Souls, Too (Tall Tales and Short Stories, Vol. II). He lives in Kingston, Ontario with his wife JoAnne.
