

David S. Mitchell has a Bachelor of Arts in English Literature and Philosophy from Montreal's Concordia University. He has been providing English-language communication services since 1997, including translation, copywriting, editing and proofreading for both the private and public sector in Quebec and Canada. Professional websites: dmitchell.ca and LinkedIn.

Among his clients are advertising and multimedia firms, communication and management consultants, film-funding agencies, hospitals, publishing houses, software developers, universities, Web branding and marketing specialists, environmental groups and nonprofit organizations.

He has enjoyed several long-standing relationships with clients:

- From 2007 to 2023, David served as the copy editor for 26 issues of LEARNing Landscapes, “an open access, peer-reviewed , online educational journal supported by LEARN (Leading English Education and Resource Network).” During this period, he edited over 500 articles and transcribed dozens of interviews.
- Since 2001, David has enjoyed a fruitful collaboration with Telefilm Canada, a Crown corporation whose mission is to “support the development, production, promotion and distribution of the screen-based industry in Canada.” He has worked on more than 1300 projects for Telefilm, ranging from translating press releases, financial statements and auditor reports to writing speeches, editing sensitive documents and adapting movie subtitles into English.
- Between 2000 and 2011 and 2021 to 2023, David carried out over 500 proofreading assignments for the Quebec Ministry of Education, covering a wide range of materials: brochures and newsletters, administrative documents, provincial examinations, white papers, teaching and classroom resources, vocational education documents, conference presentations and policy reforms.
- From 2009 to 2012, David was a freelance copywriter for Reader's Digest in Montreal. Assignments included writing copy for direct mail campaigns, Canadian-themed projects, as well as brochures and catalogues featuring books, CDs, DVDs, games, toys and other products.

David is the author of two books. Published in 2023, Trivia Fusion: Connect the Thoughts invites readers to meet their trivia match with 555 pop culture challenges. The book also has a bonus Canadian Connections section, which currently appears as part of his trivia page in two magazines: Our Canada and More of Our Canada. Also published in 2023, Bumpkinville: A 1990s tour de farce is a brief but satirical romp of corporate life and pop culture in the 1990s. It tells the rags-to-riches story of Dormant Brouxall, who incredibly transforms from an ex-con to a country music superstar. For more info on the book, see Bumpkinville and Creative Gallery.

Diagnosed with type 1 diabetes at age 14, David's recent advocacy efforts led to fiscal policy changes in 2022 from both Revenue Canada and Revenu Québec, helping to put “$470 million back in the pockets of Canadians with T1D.” For more information, please read this article that appeared in February 2023.
