

Heath is a ceramic artist who works with his wife from their home studio at Kootenay Lake, BC. He's been a writer for the past four decades, only sharing his work recently in his comically absurd social media posts about making pottery and raising backyard chickens. Twenty years of living a rural do-it-yourself lifestyle has inspired him to self-publish a fantasy story about the characters he watches from his kitchen window daily. The Four Chickens of the Asquawkalypse is his first published work.