

Bio:

Matthew Fries, at the age of seven, was once asked: “What do you want to do when you grow up?” He answered: “Play shortstop for the Toronto Blue Jays in the summer and write books in the winter.” Well, he is in his fifties now, and one of those ships has sailed; otherwise, he is living his dream.

Matthew Fries is a graduate of the Creative Writing program at York University. He has had many short stories published in Canada, the US, and the UK. His first novel, The Sick Box, was published in 2021. The Rabbit Hole is part II in The Sick Box series, and his second novel.

Proud husband and father to a wonderful daughter, he works at The University of Waterloo, Institute for Quantum Computing.