

Author Bio: S.E.Linn

S.E. Linn is an award-winning Canadian author and creative powerhouse whose works span multiple genres and mediums. Her body of written works includes: creative fiction such as the racy, 90's memoir "Pinky Swear," while her children's book "The Marmot in My Culvert" delights young readers. In non-fiction, she has penned travel guides such as "Premier Family Travel Guide: Banff National Park & The Canadian Rockies" and "10 Days Around Iceland." Food lovers also enjoy her cookbook trilogy: "Boozy Bacon Cocktails," "Creative Charcuterie," and "Tasty Tapas."

With specialties ranging from creative fiction, non-fiction, poetry, and children's literature to travel guides, short stories, self-help, editing, graphic design, and publishing, S.E. Linn brings a unique perspective and depth to her writing. Her background in Women's Contemporary Literature, ESL teaching, travel writing, psychology, and business supporting women informs her empathetic and insightful voice.

Passionate about exploring the world, S.E. Linn treasures traveling with her two humans, curling up with a good book and her beloved dog, Jackson, practicing yoga, skiing, and immersing herself in diverse cultures. She finds fulfillment in being of service to others through her work and life experiences.

S.E. Linn resides in the scenic interior of beautiful British Columbia, where the natural beauty inspires her creative endeavors and adventurous spirit.
